Sex, Drugs And Teen Pregnancy In The African American Community

The intimidating street behavior of young inner-city Black males, apparent to both their peers and to whites, is the most visible sign of how profoundly alienated they are from American society, says a recent study by a University of Pennsylvania sociologist.

The over-emphasis on sexual prowess and involvement with the drug culture are two other serious responses to this alienation, which results from a lack of jobs that denies many young Black men the possibility of attaining the American dream, i.e., forming an economically self-reliant family, says Elijah Anderson, Ph.D., in his new book, Streetwise: Race, Class, and Change in an Urban Community (University of Chicago Press, 1990). Faced with severely limited opportunity, young fathers remain strongly committed to their male peer groups, which devalue conventional family life, says Anderson.

Anderson's findings are a result of a 15-year study of two adjacent but distinct neighborhoods in Philadelphia. One is a predominantly Black ghetto, while the other is a gentrifying, racially mixed middle-class neighborhood.

"My book describes — in a manner designed to illuminate to people outside of these communities — the problems of drugs, teen pregnancy, crime, and discrimination within a complex class structure," says Penn sociologist Anderson. "I've also tried to lay the groundwork for structuring a public policy much resembling the post-World War II Marshall Plan to tackle these issues.

Anderson's findings range from Black teenagers' attitudes toward sex and drugs to white middle-class resentment of "yuppies". Among his findings:

- o Many impoverished Black teenage girls, believing that their futures hold little promise, see pregnancy as a way to gain social status and economic support.

- o The peer group culture among poor Black boys that emphasizes multiple sex partners, with impregnation as proof of manhood, leads to a sexual game between boy and girl. Girls are lured by the (usually older) boy's vague but convincing promises of love and marriage.

- o Drugs have essentially become the currency of the ghetto underclass, with food stamps and sex often being sold for "a fix."

- o Many long-time progressive residents of the nearby white community initially resented the yuppies moving into their neighborhood. However, as the problems of the ghetto have begun to spill over into their community, these resentments have lessened and the two groups are bonding against a common threat.

- o Middle-class Black families who live in the gentrified neighborhood experience "status anxiety" and are careful to distance themselves from the neighboring ghetto.

Anderson has used "participant observation" in which he observes, interviews, and interacts with members of each community, to collect data for his study. This ethnographic method complements studies based on demographics and relies on the researcher to analyze what he sees. "The problems that my study depicts are deeply connected with the changing economy and the social and racial nature of opportunity in America," says

Anderson. "The lack of adequate funding has left many cities with serious budgetary problems, leaving needy people to fend for themselves. This situation calls for a multi-pronged approach that would combine public and private resources, Anderson says. Convinced that nothing is more important than giving young people a stake in conventional society, he calls for action that mitigates the problems that urban children face.

"Currently there is no mode for children to learn the academic and social skills essential to adequately paying employment in the emerging service economy and to success in life" he says. Another facet of Anderson's proposal is for improved drug education and treatment on demand, emphasizing long-term rehabilitation. But Anderson gives highest priority to enhanced educational opportunities and comprehensive job training, ideally through major employers, that is both long-range and of high quality. "We need to provide people the skills they need to find jobs," he says. Anderson firmly believes, however, that private corporations must offer more than job training. They must play an active role in helping communities as a whole. Realizing that many businesses regard community assistance as being outside the definition of corporate responsibility, he calls for government sponsored incentives along the lines of the Marshall Plan to spur the business sector into action. Anderson is aware of the magnitude of the undertaking he is proposing, but stresses: "I see such an investment as both a moral imperative and as an act of enlightened self-interest. People are dying, and the welfare of our cities is at stake."

Elijah Anderson is a professor of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania. His study was partly supported by grants from the U.S. Bureau of the Census and the National Institute of Justice.

More Pregnant Women Eligible For Medi-Cal

by: Vanessa H. Long, PHN

As a result of a recent law, more pregnant women may be eligible for Medi-Cal. This means that Medi-Cal may pay for doctor visits and a hospital delivery. There is even a special kind of Medi-Cal for women who are undocumented or who have applied for amnesty. Because of this recent law, pregnant women may apply for Medi-Cal without this affecting the amnesty process. Medi-Cal will not report these women to immigration while applying for or receiving LIMITED Medi-Cal services while they are pregnant.

Pregnant women are encouraged to apply at their nearest Medi-Cal office. They must bring some form of identification, and have proof of their income and property. They will also need a letter saying they are pregnant and their due date from their doctor or clinic. If they meet the income and property limits and requirements, there will be no share of cost for related pregnancy services.

In announcing the hearing, Congressman Brown said, "The advisory panel report on NASA presents important observations and recommendations for the Science Committee to consider as it maps civil space goals and directions for the coming decades. Many of the very issues and findings identified in the report have also been defined by the Science Committee over the past several years. With major new decisions to be made about U.S. Space programs, it is opportune to examine the report's recommendations."

The Advisory Committee, headed by Norman Augustine, was commissioned to advise the NASA Administrator and the Vice President on overall approaches to implement the U.S. space program in the coming decades.

The report, requested in response to public perceptions of growing management and technical problems confronting the space program, makes specific recommendations concerning future goals, program content, and internal NASA management. This hearing will be the first in a series of inquiries examining the future mission of NASA and the organizational framework for accomplishing our goals in space.

In commenting on the hearing, Congressman Robert Walker (R-PA), ranking Republican Member of the Committee said "I am pleased with the study's dual emphasis on science and exploration and this hearing will give us a opportunity to hear greater detail on the Committee's recommendations. The study will be a useful tool for us as we attempt to strengthen our space program."

Witnesses will include Norman Augustine, Chairman of the Advisory Committee, and other participating members of the study.

Local College Transferees Get Best Grades At CSUSB

SAN BERNARDINO—Students who transfer to California State University from San Bernardino Valley and Crafton Hills colleges make better grades than all other community college students across the state. The students who study for their first two years of college at Valley College in San Bernardino or Crafton Hills College in Yucaipa not only make better grades after transfer than all students who transfer from other community colleges, they are 12 percent higher in their grade point averages than the "native" students at state universities. (Native students are those who began college at the university in their freshman year.) Findings were reported by the California State University system as a sign of "excellent progress" on the part of San Bernardino Community College District, which governs both Valley and Crafton Hills.

Dr. Stuart M. Bundy, chancellor for the district, said, "This academic performance report clearly demonstrates the effectiveness of the transfer programs at the two community colleges and the power of the classroom experience under great teaching." Bundy pointed out that when San Bernardino voters established Valley College in 1926, the original curriculum was designed to be the equivalent of course work taken at the University of California. "The college has maintained that emphasis to this date," Dr. Bundy said. "Crafton Hills College has followed that fine tradition since its creation in 1972." Most of the district's students who transfer to a state university chose CSUSB, and Bundy noted, relations between the three institutions have been significantly improved over the years. As an example, articulation agreements are consistently honored. Such agreements assure that credits earned by community college students are fully honored at CSUSB. The transition to a four year system is made smoother by those agreements, he said.

Quotas Effect Us In The Long Run

Industry Association, believes.

The exclusivity of the Japanese market "can only be changed with strong action." Specifically, he means "affirmative-action-style numerical goals," the Journal explained.

In four years, U. S. firms have gone from almost nothing to a 12.3% increase for a $1 billion gain in annual sales. The trade deficit has improved for the U. S., Americans have kept their jobs and the U. S. competitive position has improved.

Many, if not most, people confuse quotas with affirmative action and equal opportunity. Conservatives generally favor some form of affirmative action, but abhor quotas on the basis of helping the advantaged members of a designated group.

However, the Japan quota program for the most advantagued group in America, the basis for conservative opposition to quotas, makes good common sense because it benefits the common good.

Of course, the architects of the Japan quota policy are Bush administration conservative opponents of quotas for Blacks at home as a remedy for centuries of slavery and Jim Crow. In domestic policy they espouse a so-called "colorblind" attitude that applies "a strict scrutiny standard" to legal interpretations of racial remedies.

They stress the "letter" of the law without the "spirit" of the law. This soul-less policy was seen recently in the Department of Education's new policy against race-based quota scholarships for Blacks, which could result in fewer Blacks going to college.

To disguise against the quota system for U. S. firms and any similarity with quotas for Blacks, these "colorblind" conservatives call their affirmative action-quota-set-aside program from the Japanese "managed trade."

"With Japan, nothing short of a totally rigid, numerical, uncompromising approach works," explained one economist. Sounds like an argument made frequently by Blacks about Whites who make public policy, doesn't it?

These same conservatives believe that quotas and set-asides are a zero-sum game in which the losers are those groups outside of the preferred group. That same logic is absent when rich White people are preferred and Japanese sign the checks.

However, the Japanese, worried about quality and costlier products, are giving them a taste of their own racist medicine. Toyota says the U. S.-made quota chips are 10% more expensive and far below performance standards. So much for White superiority.

Instead of making the work ethic and responsibility argument that suggests that Blacks beg for quotas because they can't compete, these policymakers are shameless in their hat-in-hand policy toward the Japanese.

"Americans say they are simply trying to force their way into the (Japanese) family," observed the Journal. That reminds me of Blacks who believe exclusively in quotas and hand outs from Whites.

American Whites are lap dog-ging the Japanese for the same reason that Blacks adopted the policy of integration, a tragedy of exaggerated expectations.

Neither group believes in its own ability to be competitive.

I believe that U. S. firms and Blacks are legally entitled (so does the U. S. Supreme Court) to reparations (quotas), but I'm also convinced that in the long run both U. S. firms and Blacks will decline because of an absence of their own developed strengths.

California Legislative Update

By The Speaker of The Assembly, The Honorable Willie Brown

One would think that the task of coming up with a budget — be it for a family or business — would be a simple matter of matching spending with income.

"But for California Government it is a great deal more complex. State spending plans are complicated by a unique interplay of several different factors:

Changing economic conditions; Voter-approved tax and spending limitations; Constitutional expenditure requirements; Court mandates; A two-thirds vote requirement in both houses of the Legislature for appropriations measures; And, a host of other constitutional and statutory constraints.

I Simply put, the Governor and the Legislature no longer have the flexibility to craft a rational budget.

What we have done is lace ourselves into a fiscal straitjacket that was at least partially responsible for last year's long and contentious budget fight.

"Clearly changes must be made.

"A crucial first step was taken earlier this month when the Joint Legislative Budget Committee

... with little fanfare or notice formally began the process of setting up a constitutional revision commission to look at ways of overhauling the annual budget and the fiscal review process.

"Such a major constitutional reform effort has not been tackled since the first half of the 1970s. That is how seriously we regard the problem.

"Soon... in conjunction with the new Governor... a commission can be appointed that represents a cross section of knowledgeable and respected Californians.

"Then, after many months of public hearings and careful study, the commission will make its recommendations to the Legislature, which hopefully will submit needed constitutional reforms to the voters by the 1992 elections.

"It is time to stop taking a piecemeal approach to our budget problems. Instead we must tackle this head-on, unified in our belief that reform is needed to correct the structural imbalance besetting the state budget-making.

"It is the most responsible way of starting this new year.

"This is Assembly Speaker Willie L. Brown, Jr. Thank you for listening."

Robert Johnson's Expanding Empire: While BET (Black Entertainment Television) founder Robert Johnson recently kicked off his new United Image joint venture with TV actor/producer Tim Reid, more attention is being focused on yet another venture—YSB (or "Young Sisters and Brothers"), a magazine targeting Black teenagers as well as their families, that is slated to debut in July. Emphasis will be placed on boosting the self-esteem of Black teens, as the magazine, which will be available by subscription only, has already been allotted over $1.5 million worth of BET air time for promotion. Additionally, BET's sales staff will also push magazine ads. YSB has been committed a start-up budget of $5 million over the next two years via Paige Publications, a subsidiary of BET named after Johnson's own five year old daughter. With projected operating costs of about $2 million per year, Johnson hopes to bring in nearly $4.5 million (based on a subscriber base of 200,000). YSB will be available at a rate of $11.95 for 10 issues yearly. Already, BET has proven successful with its investment in Emerge, a monthly targeting upscale Blacks.

Dance Theater Of Harlem Gets Back Into The Swing of Things: It was over six months ago that the Dance Theater of Harlem cancelled two major tours and laid off 54 dancers as well as the bulk of its staff, amid a financial crisis that left the company with a $1.7 million deficit. Now, with the support of some major contributors like the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund who came to its aid with a $1 million grant—$600,000 of it to help reduce the deficit and $400,000 for salaries and company operations, so long as the company raised additional funds by September 30 (they did); and American Express, who made a four year commitment to the dance troupe this past summer, involving a cash contribution of $1 million and in-kind contribution of a minimum of $250,000 in marketing expertise, the Dance Theater of Harlem is gearing up for a prosperous '91. Plans are already underway for the company to resume full-scale touring.

Just Briefly: Among the nation's top ten concert grossers this year were Janet Jackson

(who came in fourth with total ticket sales of $29 million), and M.C. Hammer (who ranked seventh with $26.3 million)....Just one black made the list of 1990's top grossing actors. That actor was Morgan Freeman, who helped to rake in over $105 million with "Driving Miss Daisy"....Meanwhile, the nation's only black-controlled, first-run theater will mark its Second Annual Baldwin Hills Entertainment Complex "Path To Success" awards celebration, with some veteran black entertainers having their hands and footprints immortalized on the cement walk. The affair is slated for February 2, 1991. Honorees include Billy Dee Williams, Marla Gibbs, Madge Sinclair, and Beah Richard, who received an Academy nomination for her part in "Guess Who's Coming To Dinner".

Former Student Honored At Elementary School

by: Jean Denny

James Durrant, a native of San Bernardino, was honored on December 20, 1990 at the Reilly Elementary School in San Bernardino for his continued support and encouragement to the students there.

Durrant, 26, who was once a student at Reilly recently graduated from Howard University Law School in Washington D.C. and is presently a judge advocate in the United States Air Force and stationed in St Angelo, Texas.

Durrant returned to his old schools on several occasions to talk to students. "The biggest joy is to be able to share with the students," he said in a recent telephone interview. He said when students see someone from their old neighborhood then they are encouraged. "They need to see you and touch you, to see someone tangible who have made it."

Though he has returned to the middle and high school he says he enjoys returning to the elementary school he once attended most of all. "I like to talk to them when they are very young."

Durrant, who wanted to be a lawyer since childhood said he has always had a long range goal. "I had a friend who lived down the street from me who was a lawyer."

A gifted student, Durrant graduated from Pacific High School and went to Howard University for his under graduate studies as well as Law School. He got a commission in ROTC where he was pilot qualified but not rated. As a judge advocate he will be working as a prosecuting attorney for the Air Force.

Durrant said he tells the students what he's done in brief and then tries to help student focus in and not settle for what statistics have for African American and Hispanics. "I'd like to break mind sets and ideals that have been perpetuated through society and to re-educate." He tells students, "You can do anything you want to do." Durrant also talks to students about the Black educational institutions and Black leaders in society.

Durrant said in looking to the future that he'd one day like to get into politics but right now he's satisfied with what he's doing.

OUR BODIES

by Ernest C. Levister, Jr., M.D., F.A.C.P.

Caregivers

Dear Dr. Levister: My mother is chronically ill. She will be coming home next week and I was told to look into caregivers. What is a caregiver? A concerned daughter.

Dear Concerned: '91 is in and many of us will function as care givers, this is one who helps or takes care of a sick individual. A caregiver can be a professional such as a nurse, medical assistant, social worker or counselor, the beat goes on.

A caregiver is usually a family member or friend who plays the key role in responding to the special ongoing needs of an ill loved one.

This role is unique and one for which you are not trained but is thrust upon you. There are some important things to keep in mind: People who are ill are usually not purposefully difficult or unbearing. These responses may be part of the disease process itself or how they are dealing with it. Have several consultations with your doctor and other professionals involved and obtain literature on the problem in order to enhance your knowledge and organize realistic goals. Establish a fixed routine. Ensure that appropriate meals and medications are done in a timely fashion.

The underlying disease process and the age of the patient will dictate measures to be taken to rehabilitate or maintain the individual's present level of function. Try to deal with the individual and other family members with respect and empathy, remember but for the grace of God it could be you. This role will be stressful and you should organize daily and weekly respite or the ability to get out of the situation and do something for yourself. There are support groups in which caregivers caring for individuals with similar illnesses get together periodically and ventilate, share their successes and failures. Joining one will help you to realize that you are not alone and open windows to resolution of some of your problems.

Dr. Levister welcomes reader mail concerning their body but regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters. Your letters will be incorporated into the column as space permits. You may direct your letters to Dr. Levister in care of Voice News, P O Box 1581, Riverside, CA 92502.

Preventative Health Care For The Aged

by: Andrew Manthe

San Bernardino County residents age 60 and over can receive preventive health services at Senior Health Clinics run by the Department of Public Health's Aging Program. At these clinics, senior citizens will receive an annual comprehensive health history which is required to determine health status. In addition, seniors will receive a nutrition evaluation, health assessments and counseling from public health nurses.

Health assessments include height and weight, pulse and blood pressure, vision, hearing, mouth, skin, and foot inspection. If needed, blood sugar, urine and hemoglobin tests are provided to detect health problems such as diabetes or anemia. Monitoring and follow-up of health problems or referral to other services are provided depending on assessment findings.

Tetanus/diphtheria and pneumococcal vaccinations are available. Boosters for tetanus and diphtheria should be given every 10 years. Everyone 65 years and older should have pneumococcal vaccine if they have not had it before. Health counseling is provided to help senior citizens practice healthful self-care and to use health care services more effectively. At each clinic, senior citizens are encouraged to share their health concerns with the public health nurse who considers their comments important.

All county residents age 60 and over are eligible for these services at no cost, although a donation of one dollar per visit is accepted. To receive service at these Senior Health Clinics, appointments are encouraged and can be made by calling the clinic of your choice from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Seniors without appointments may also be accepted if time permits.

Black Chiropractors Seek To Share Earning Power, Natural Healing In 90's

Chiropractors are the nation's fourth highest-paid doctors, and the need to increase Black participation as both patients and doctors in this drugless, nonsurgical and completely natural healing method is the primary 1990's action item for the 300-member American Black Chiropractors Association (ABCA).

"We are still the minority in a minority profession," cited Fr. James Mosley of Columbus, GA. "Our national African-American community needs to look at chiropractic both in terms of the natural healing of physical ailment, as well as a lucrative career choice for young Blacks considering a healthcare profession." According to recent statistics, only surgeons, psychiatrists and osteopaths earn an average annual salary of $80,000-plus after three years of practice.

"Our challenge for the 90's is to show our African-American community the total benefits of chiropractic healthcare," explained ABCA Vice President

Dr. Alfred Davis of Montclair, NJ and member of the state's board of Chiropractic Examiners. "In St. Louis, for example, where only nine of the city's 600 chiropractors are African-Americans, a recent survey in this Black back problems; yet only one percent had ever consulted a chiropractor. These alarming statistics underscore our two primary challenges: correcting our people's critical lack of knowledge about chiropractic healing and increasing the numbers of Black chiropractors to cure them."

At its August ABCA annual convention here, more than 200 chiropractors participated in seminars and workshops on chiropractic in sports medicine, musculo-skeletal conditions and inter-organizational networking. "It is through our active participation with the NMA (National Medical Association) and the UNCF that African-American students can become more aware of the lucrative career opportunities in the chiropractic field," remarked Davis. "There is a great need for more Black chiropractors across the nation and through our collective efforts, we hope to communicate both the natural healing and financial benefits of chiropractic to our communities."

Founded in 1980, the ABCA is a non-profit organization established to promote better healthcare in the Black community; to educate the public on the benefits of chiropractic; and to assist the educational endeavors of those interested in the chiropractic profession.

Drew Develops Drug That Saves Babies

by: Rose M. Wright

A group of researchers at the Charles R. Drew University of Medicine and Science have become the first group in the world to successfully use synthetic proteins in development of a second generation surfactant for treatment of premature newborns.

Under the leadership of William Taeusch, M.D., Professor of Pediatrics and Director of the Neonatology Division at the University, use of therapeutic surfactants, modelled on a substance produced naturally by the body, has already helped to lower infant mortality at the treatment site, Drew Medical Center, from 59 in 1987-88 to 36 for 1989-90.

"Black infants have twice the neonatal mortality of white infants in this country, largely due to the higher delivery rate of premature infants among Blacks," said Dr. Taeusch. "Lung immaturity is the leading cause of death among premature infant, hence the relevance of doing this research at a medical center with a large Black infant population."

Surfactant is quickly becoming the treatment of choice for premature infants born with immature lungs and Respiratory Distress Syndrome. (RDS). Discovered in the 1950s by John Clements, surfactant is a natural surface active substance required by the lungs of all healthy individuals. Without the presence of surfactant the lungs would not expand, preventing carbon dioxide to be expelled and oxygen to be absorbed. Thus a person whose lungs do not produce enough surfactant essentially suffocates. In addition to being used on babies with immature lung development, future research may prove that surfactant can benefit adults suffering from adult respiratory syndrome.

In spite of the fact that the success rate of saving premature babies with surfactant has been good, one third of the RDS babies treated are still not responding to this new therapy. Dr. Taeusch says it is usually the smallest of the infants, those weighing much less than three pounds at birth, who succumb to RDS in spite of being given surfactant. "We believe that the surfactant administered is being inactivated by serum leaking into the airspaces," said Dr. Taeusch. "We are currently trying to design surfactants that will resist this inhibition."

Administered to the lungs through a tube hooked up to the trachea, surfactant is given to babies until their lungs are able to produce surfactant naturally. One type of protein-free surfactant, Exosurf, has been approved by the Federal Drug Administration for use. Another Surfactant called Survanta has been developed in Japan and is widely used in the United States.

According to Frans J. Walther, M.D., Ph.D., professor at the Charles R. Drew University of Medicine and Science and a member of the research team, rescue treatment for infants born with RDS includes two treatments of surfactant: one within the first six hours of life and a second 12 hours later. Depending on the type of surfactant used, the response time can be immediate or take up to a few hours. These infants are maintained on ventilators and high concentrations of oxygen until their own surfactant production takes over and their lungs mature.

Until such time as surfactant is naturally produced some infants can experience chronic lung damage caused by being connected to ventilators for an extended period of time. Dr. Walter and other colleagues of the research group are testing a combination of surfactant therapy with additional enzymes that prevent the development of oxygen toxicity in the lung of premature infants. This combination therapy may be effective to reduce the severity of RDS and the negative effects of ventilatory support.

Alan Waring, Ph.D., assistant professor at the University and a member of the research team, is responsible for determining the structure of protein molecules that are in surfactant, looks forward to a variety of surfactants able to treat various forms of RDS being produced within the next five to ten years. "We want to use the structure information to formulate better surfactants for babies," he said.

Dr. Taeusch hopes that the research that is being done will attract more Black and Hispanic students from the community who are working on Ph.D. and M.D. Degrees. He sees the research in his lab as serving two missions: providing good research and serving as a training ground for future researchers. "I hope the students who are training in research now will surpass research currently being done and win Nobel prizes," said Dr. Taeusch.

The Charles R. Drew University, Division of Neonatology currently has 12 faculty members, five physicians training under a three-year fellowship program and several King/Drew Medical Magnet High School school and college students.

Self Help Groups Help You Keep Your New Years Resolution

by: Joe Horton

Is this the year you're going to stop overeating, end a miserable relationship, or reduce your spending spree? Every year, well-intentioned people set New Year's resolutions, only to find that noble goals for self-improvement often crumble by February 1.

Now, the California Network of Self-Help Centers offers a way to keep those resolutions alive by providing proven ways to fight bad habits: convenient self-help groups for people who want to improve their emotional and physical health.

By calling 1-800-222-LINK toll-free, Californians can find referrals to more than 3,500 free or low-cost support groups statewide. Some of the groups that can help people achieve their goals, "one day at a time," are Overeaters Anonymous, Adult Children of Alcoholics, Codependents Anonymous, Emotions Anonymous, Gamblers Anonymous, Debtors Anonymous, and Pills Anonymous.

Other groups offer various methods to help people cope better with troubling situations such as divorce, bereavement, child abuse, sexual abuse, caring for aging parents, or physical illness.

"Self-Help groups provide an opportunity for the individual to see how their life circumstance is similar to others," said Joe Horton, coordinator of the Southern California Self Help Center. "In other words, a person doesn't have to feel that he or she is the only one in a situation, but can participate in a group of people who share the same concern."

Many group members report a better outlook, higher self-esteem and greater life satisfaction as a result of their group participation.

The Southern California Self-Help Center is one of the six regional offices of the California Network of Self-Help Centers. Sponsored by the California Department of Mental Health, these centers provide self-help groups information and assistance throughout California. For information on starting new self-help groups and managing existing groups in your area contact Joe Horton at (619) 298-3152.

Now Hear This: Why Some Kids Listen

by: Lesta Cordil

Child-rearing experts frequently give advice about how to communicate with children. But much of it is theoretical and not that useful, reports the January 1991 Reader's Digest.

Ray Guarendi, author of "Back to the Family," interviewed 100 successful families to find out best ways to communicate with kids. Here are his findings.

1. Talk less. One common mistake is The Lecture, the long monologue that often starts with "When I was your age"

Kids reflexively shut down in the face of a lecture. Lines like "When you have children of your own, you'll understand" don't work. Why? Kids are creatures of the here and now.

Instead, parents should give specific reasons for their actions in present language: "I'm not letting you go to the party because I don't think there will be enough adult supervision."

We make a difference in 100 million lives worldwide.

One mom uses an indirect approach, citing news stories. When her kids began driving, she didn't repeat "don't drink; don't speed." Instead, she discussed accident stories and expressed sympathy for car-crash victims, relying on her teen-ager's compulsion to insert his own opinions — especially if he thinks he isn't being asked for them.

2. Avoid heated words.

Parents' emotions are so closely linked to their children's well-being that no parent is calm all the time. Yet the more worked up they become, the more likely they are to say something they can't unsay.

When an issue threatens to get out of hand, one mother tells her kids: "I'm really upset, so I don't want to say anything right now. Go play, and I'll come get you when I'm calm."

3. Give your child a fair hearing. "Listen to the end, no matter what you are being told," one father advises. "If you blow up before listening to the whole story, be ready to apologize."

One father of three, ages seven through 16, reminds himself that a child's perspective is not an adult's. Life's little problems seem bigger when you're a child.

4. Time it right. Just as important as how we talk or listen is when. The most produc-

Gloria said they are also going to become members of the African American Chamber of Commerce. "We're looking forward to becoming involved with other Black businesses."

In looking to the future Gloria said she's hoping they will expand to other cities like Riverside, CA.

ECONOMIC NETWORK LOOKS FOR NEW MEMBERS

The Economic Network is conducting a very ambitious public relations campaign to promote the African-American business and professional people within the African-American community.

This campaign is a desperate attempt to educate the African-American consumer on the reciprocal advantages and benefits of patronizing the African-American business or professional persons of the Economic Network. A monthly business bulletin will be published by the Economic Network and distributed throughout the African-American communities of the Inland Empire. The initial publication is scheduled for January, 1991 with a minimum circulation of 10,000. The consumers will be strongly encouraged to patronize the business and professional people of the Economic Network as they witness the contributions re-invested in their communities.

After an appropriate number of African-American business and professional people participate in this public relations campaign, The Economic Network purposes to mail the monthly publication directly to the homes of the African-American consumers. Until then, the monthly publication will be placed in African-American business locations and churches. Cost of participation in this public relations campaign and membership in the Economic Network is $25 per month. Their next scheduled meeting is January 6 at 6 p.m. at 2657 Prospect Ave. (at Victoria), Riverside, CA. 92507.

Black Groups Urged To Cancel Conventions

Recently, progressive African American individuals, leaders and organizations have been emphasizing self-help efforts. One of those individuals in the forefront of such efforts is Tony Brown, noted writer and talk show host of Tony Brown's Journal.

Readers of his column are familiar with his Buy Freedom campaign, which calls for the African American community to do what every other ethnic group in this country has managed to do — support their own businesses. Brown says that all the $350 billion annual income of African Americans can be retained in the community through supporting community conscious entrepreneurs who will, in turn, re-invest a portion of the profits in jobs, competitive prices and leadership.

It seems only natural then, that Brown should be the one to talk to the newly formed, National Association of Black Organizations, comprised of the Leaders of 100 African American groups, whose direction aims at promoting self-help programs that can be duplicated throughout African American communities. Never one to mince words, Brown proposed a bold new 1992 plan to them—African American owned hotels. Such a creature doesn't seem to exist in major metropolitan areas, although 150 African American organizations do hold conventions, conferences and dinners in white owned hotels, discussing white racism and African American poverty, to the tune of $3 billion he said. He proposed that these groups cancel their 1992 conventions and use their lime and money wisely. The 1991 conferences would be used for develop and coordinate an economic recovery plan, which would include the purchase of hotels in major cities to be used as the future site of meetings. Under this plan, by 1992, African Americans would be in a position to use the $3 billion as a capital base to finance other enterprises and start other self help projects. Brown says a hotel belonging to a major chain in one of the top-20 populated markets can be purchased for a cool $200 million with a down payment of 10 percent or $20 million. With $400 million, which he calculates as the interest on the $3 billion not used on conferences, an African American coalition or individual organizations could own hotels in these 20 urban areas.

Then the social ills that we formerly discussed could be hashed out through self-financed programs, some financed by revenues generated from our $3 billion in investments. And if ever it would happen, now is the time. Who would have thought we'd see Nelson Mandela free? Who would have thought they'd live to see the Berlin Wall come down? If it sounds like a hare-brained idea, would you trust politically active, former New York Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm? Mrs. Chisholm, the luncheon speaker at the gathering offered $25,000 of her own money to ward the plan! You and I can contribute by asking if our organizations to cancel their 1991 conventions and invest the money in our future. If you want more information write to Tony Brown at 1501 Broadway, Suite 2014, New York, New York 10036 or call (212) 575-0876.

Cajon Students Apologize to Neighbors

Last Fall students from Cajon High School were involved in what Police reported as a race riot between Hispanic and Black students. The disturbance literally made hostages of the neighbors surrounding the school. The beginning of the healing was when students met to discuss their feelings and to help work through their own problems. These encounters grew in intensity, the students began to come up with ideas to put the incident behind them. One of the ideas was to apologize to the neighbors who were affected. They decided to buy each neighbor a poinsettia. In order to raise the money, the students held a talent show.

Principal Judy Browne was pleased with the students idea and supported them wholeheartedly.

The neighbors warmly receive students from Cajon.

tive moments are mealtime and bedtime. A South Dakota mom asks her kids at bedtime about the best times of their day and the worst. "We learn a lot," she says.

5. Say it with love. Affection can heal harsh moments. It's a silent sign that no matter what disagreements or conflicts arise, as long as people can touch, they can eventually talk.

Recognizing her 11-year-old baseball-player son's uneasiness at any public display of mushiness, one mother signals her love silently by squeezing his shoulder three times when he gets up to bat. "No one else is the wiser," she says.

6. Value your child's opinion. The best parents are those who persist in a decision, no matter how much their kids disagree. Decisiveness, however, doesn't mean ignoring kids. Allowing them a voice in family issues has two benefits: Children accept decisions better when they're at least consulted, and they also consider themselves as a valued part of the whole family.

Of course, enforcing discipline quite often entails decisions made solely by the parent.

If homework must be done before any TV viewing, discussing the issue will lead only to a dead-end debate. Know when to close the discussion — for the benefit of everyone.

Church Issues Call Against Racism

by Gwen McKinney (NNPA News Service)

Washington—Racism in America is increasingly becoming one of the greatest threats to the national security, declares the United Church of Christ which plans to mark the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by issuing a pastoral letter on racism. The Bush administration's recent pronouncement against minority scholarships, the president's veto of the Civil Rights Act, increasing poverty among Blacks and the tide of overt acts against African-Americans and other minorities point to a backward slide in race relations.

"Despite significant progress, our church, society and world are polarized today because of the pervasive and destructive sin of racism," states the draft document which will be released by the 1.7 million member church at its annual meeting in January. "We emphatically reject the notion that racism, particularly in the form of institutionalized discrimination, is a problem that no longer requires our utmost attention," the draft document continues.

Rev. Charles Shelby Rooks, a signatory of the letter and a prominent UCC official, insists that the church action comes at a time when America must be confronted with a moral challenge on racism. "It is ironic that the sons and daughters of people of color are being asked to bear a disproportionate brunt of sacrifice should war break out," maintains Rev. Benjamin F. Chavis, executive director of the UCC Commission for Racial Justice. "Our people are fighting in the name of a nation which just vetoed the civil rights bill."

Congressional advocates of the Civil Rights Act say they will reintroduce the bill shortly after Congress returns in January.

Rev. King's birthday will also mark the date which the United Nations authorized the use of military force against Iraq. African-American opponents of the war including peace activists, religious leaders, students and civil rights organizers are calling on the nation to use January 15th for nonviolent protests against the war in the Persian Gulf.

Questions & Answers

by Dr. Reginald Woods

Where Did Cain's Wife Come From?

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods, In the Book of Genesis, God created Adam and Eve. They were the first two people. They had two sons: Cain and Abel. Cain killed Abel. Then in Genesis Four it says that Cain knew his wife and she conceived a child. My question is where did Cain's wife come from? Edwin Taylor, Fallsburg, N.Y.

ANSWER: The basic intent of the Bible is to reveal to man his need for a Savior and describe who that Savior is - Jesus Christ. It is not written to explain all the details of history and science, even though what's written in the Bible is 100% accurate from a historical and scientific standpoint. Consequently, when we try to analyze the Bible with our natural minds, we become frustrated about the missing details.

It is obvious that Cain married a female even though there is no direct mention of her origin. All human life as we know it began with Adam and Eve. The Bible by name mentions three of Adam's sons: Cain, Abel and Seth. However, he did have daughters also: "and the days of Adam after he had begotten Seth were eight hundred years" and he begat sons and daughters" (Genesis 5:5). Adam lived 930 years. We do not have the names of all his kids. Though the Bible does not say so directly it would seem "logical" that Cain married one of his sisters. Marriage between immediate family is not encouraged in the Bible. However, in the beginning God had to begin with what He had. Where did Cain's wife come from? Adam and Eve.

If you have a question that you would like answered, write: Pastor Reginald Woods, Life Changing Ministries, P.O. Box 9778, San Bernardino, CA 92407-9778

What The Seventh-Day Adventists Believe:

The Holy Scriptures, Old and New Testaments, are the written Word of God, given by divine inspiration through holy men of God who spoke and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. The Holy Scriptures are the infallible revelation of His will, the authoritative revealer of doctrines, and the trustworthy record of God's acts in history (2 Peter 1:20; 2 Timothy 3:16, 17).

God The Eternal Son became incarnate in Jesus Christ. Forever truly God, He became also truly man. He was conceived of the Holy Spirit and born of the virgin Mary. He suffered and died voluntarily on the cross for our sins and in our place, was raised from the dead, and ascended to minister in the heavenly sanctuary in our behalf. He will come again in glory for the final deliverance of His people and the restoration of all things (John 1:13, 14)

God As A Creator of all things has revealed in Scripture the authentic account of His creative activity. He rested on the seventh day of that first week and thus established the Sabbath as a perpetual memorial of His completed creative work. The first man and woman were made in the made of God as the crowning work of Creation (Genesis 1:2; Exodus 20:8-11)

By Baptism we confess our faith in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, and testify of our purpose to walk in newness of life. Baptism is a symbol of our union with Christ. The forgiveness of our sins and our reception of the Holy Spirit. It is by immersion in water and is contingent on an affirmation of faith in Jesus and evidence of repentance of sin (Matthew 3:13-16; 18:19, 20; Acts 2:38).

The Ten Commandments, the great principles of God's law, are exemplified in the life of Christ. They express God's love, will, and purposes concerning human conduct and relationships and are binding upon all people in every age. Through the agency of the Holy Spirit they point out sin and awaken a sense of need for a Saviour. Salvation is all of grace and not of works. But its fruitage is obedience to the Commandments (Exodus 20:1-17; Matthew 5:17).

The Seventh-Day of the week is observed as the day of rest worship, and ministry in harmony with the teaching and practice of Jesus, the Lord of the Sabbath. It is a symbol of our redemption in Christ, a sign of our sanctification a token of our a ligitance, and foretaste of our eternal future in God's kingdom. Joyful observance of this holy time is from evening to evening. Sunset to sunset. (Genesis 2:13; Luke 4:16; Hebrews 4:11).

The Second Coming of Christ is the blessed hope of the church, the grand climax of the gospel. The Saviour is coming will be literal, personal, visible, and worldwide. When He returns, the righteous dead will be resurrected, and together with the righteous living will be glorified and taken to heaven, but the unrighteous will die (John 14:1-3; Acts 1:9-11; 1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17).

Eternal Life will be granted to the redeemed by God who alone is immortal.

Until that day death is an unconscious state for all people. When Christ who is our life, appears. The resurrected righteous and the righteous will be galumphed and caught up to meet their Lord. The second resurrection (the resurrection of those who have rejected salvation) will take place a thousand years later (Ecclesiastes 9:5; Romans 6:23; 1 Corinthians 15:51-54; Revelation 20:1-10).

Ennis Whaley Choral Ensemble to Perform At Bethel Church

The Ennis Whaley Choral Ensemble, a unique choral group of mixed voices organized and directed by the Reverend Ennis Whaley, will perform January 20 at Bethel AME Church, 24480 Sophie, Perris, CA 92370.

The director has had wide and varied experience in musical and choral presentations across the United States. The concert repertoire features a variety of sacred songs, folk songs, and secular selections.

UCR's Chancellor at the Foursquare Church

UCR's Chancellor Rosemary Schraer and her husband, Harold, volunteered their services on Christmas Eve at the New Jerusalem Foursquare Church to give away food baskets to the needy. The New Jerusalem Foursquare Church feeds a hot meal to approximately 150 people daily through The Lord's Kitchen ministry. The UCR Chancellor expressed to Rev. Jerry Louder her concern and desire to serve those who were in need. The Chancellor's husband, retired professor Harold Schraer, commented that "everyone should spend at least one day a year doing this (feeding the homeless and hungry)!" Riverside Mayor Terry Frizzel also came over to New Jerusalem to help distribute food baskets on Christmas Eve. However, most of the work was done when she arrived. She was very disappointed because she had wanted to be at Chancellor Schraer's side in distributing the food baskets.

Sunday Services at Mt. Rose were truly a blessing with Rev. Mitchell Harris reaching his first sermon. He elaborated on unity. How we as a people and as Gods people must be united with God through Jesus in order to survive these times of so much evil and corruption. He encouraged all of us not to be misled by Satan and his vices, but to always pray and let God take complete control of our lives. It was an uplifting and inspirational message and a spirit filled delivery.
On Sunday evening, the children warmed our hearts with Christmas carols and recitations in celebration of the saviors birth. The story of Christmas was beautifully narrated by Sis. Glynis Harris.
Our evening culminated with refreshments and fellowship. Sunday was truly a blessing for all.

Nineteen Hundred and Ninety-One, here we come: Will you for a moment imagine the year 1991 as a home that we will visit. Nineteen Hundred and Ninety-One knowing something about the visitors, should prepared for them as the spirit of Christmas and New Years eve die down. As guest from 1990 enter the new year they will be subjected to ideologies never experienced before. Equality will be a very sensitive item. The television set will, along with our newspapers will bring the pictures of young black, yellow, brown and red Americans along with the white Americas who are willing to take the chance of losing their lives so that America can remain free from any type of foreign control. The host (1991) will have the task of trying to bring about the dignity, integrity, togetherness and loyalty that 1990 fail to fully achieve. We had too many phoney behavior, this year in situations that were vital to the success of our families, schools, cities and nation. We can do better.

I heard through the grapevine that 1991 want to be a year that promote emotional stability, high self esteem, fellowship between all races, educational progress, morale awareness and family togetherness, among all people, and above all be honest. So, 1991 here we come, the good and not so good, the ones that are willing to share and those that don't know how. Also we must not lower our values for material gain. It is, in my opinion, the most meaningful and productive way we can make a contribution to mankind is to provide examples of humanness and honesty to our children and other children, especially if we happen to be teachers or in some other position where children are under our influence. We should impress upon them the value of morale awareness. Nineteen Hundred and Ninety-One will be glad we came if we exhibit the good that is in us all. Avoid war in the middle east. Develop a group of citizens that respect themselves and others, and are always willing to help others. We can do it if we try. Together, we can.

"Let a man cease from his sinful thoughts, and all the world will soften toward him, and be ready to help him; let him put away his weakly and sickly thought, and lo! opportunities will spring up on every hand to aid his strong resolves; let him encourage good thoughts, and no hard fate shall bind him down to wretchedness and shame. The world is your kaleidoscope, and the varying combinations of colors which at every succeeding moment it presents to you are the exquisitely adjusted pictures of your ever-moving thoughts. You Will Be What You Want You Will To Be; Let Failure Find Its False Content In That Poor Word, "Environment," But Spirit Scorns It, And Is Free." As a Man Thinketh by James Allen

New Business in Moreno Valley: I was made aware of a couple of businesses located in the valley and we stopped by this weekend. "Empire Sports" is located in the shopping center near Target/Albertson stores. Also Zizzler the famous eating place is in this area. I met a very studious, polite young man in the sport store. This young man can provide us with baseballs, softball, jackets, jogging suites and other athletic equipment. It was a pleasure meeting him, stop in and say hello, you'll be glad you did. While in there buy something. He is at 25155 Sunnymead Blvd. You buy, we fry, is a fish place on Perris Boulevard where we stopped last Saturday night. We took two dinner home and it was the best fish I've eaten in a long time. It is a very nice place. You can eat there or take the meal out.

My Prayer For 1991
God, grant us the grace as another year starts to use all the hours of our days. Not for our own selfish interests and our own willful, often—wrong ways—But teach us to take time for praying and to find time for listening to you, so each day is spent well and wisely doing what you want us to do.
